Guidelines for Applicants

• About the White Poppy Peace Scholarships

The Peace Scholarships comprise grants that are awarded to assist with the costs of research that includes analysis of one or more of these topics:

- the impacts of militarism, militarisation, military deployment and / or warfare;
- alternatives to militarism, militarisation, military deployment and / or warfare;
- opposition to militarism, militarisation, military deployment and / or warfare;
- military recruitment practices and messaging;
- state construction of national identity based on militarism and militarisation;
- the military-industrial complex; or
- media coverage of militarism, militarisation, military deployment and / or warfare.

Research may be on the historical and / or present-day aspects of any of the above topics. Preference will be given to research focussed on Aotearoa New Zealand, although applications for research focussed on the Pacific will be considered. Each grant is a minimum of $1,000 - one is for a Maori or Moriori student, with the other/s open to any student with NZ citizenship or permanent residency.

• How they are funded: the Peace Scholarships are entirely funded by donations, including those collected during the White Poppies for Peace Annual Appeal. The amount and number of grants awarded annually is determined by the amount raised during that year. More information about white poppies is available at <http://www.whitepoppies.org.nz>

• Who can apply: the Peace Scholarships are for students with New Zealand citizenship or permanent residency who are enrolled and studying for a degree at any tertiary education institution in Aotearoa New Zealand.

• How to apply: the application form is available from us by email. Please list the Peace Scholarships email address peacescholarship@ymail.com in your address book, or whatever your internet service provider requires, so that it is not marked as spam. If you do not receive the application form from us within five days of asking for it, please first check your spam or junk mail folder - if it is not there, leave a message on telephone 04 382 8129 with your name, phone number and email address.

• Application deadline: the deadline for applications for Peace Scholarships to assist with research during the 2017 academic year has been extended, please contact us to apply.

• Other information: in any given year, if the quality of applications does not meet the standards set by the Committee, the Committee may decide to award only one, or no, Peace Scholarships. Applications may then be reopened, or the funds available for that year will be transferred to Peace Scholarships for the following year.
